MY JOURNEY: I'm just another girl who's momma loves and shows horses, but there's no doubt she passed on the horse bug to me. Horses are a part of my soul. The road hasn't been smooth, but horses have always been my rock. As with anything, there are good days and there are bad days, but at the end of these days you know the sun will always rise in the morning and, of course, the horses will need to be fed. That's one of the countless things that growing up and working with horses has taught me. I am so grateful to have been given amazing opportunities by everyone along the way, and I'm so excited for all of the big things coming. I look forward to continuing to become a better horsewoman and instructor in the years to come.
